YOUR STORY HERE?

Lene was designed by This Weber as an armchair for contract spaces, and stands out due to its extreme comfort, a quality shared by all Crassevig products. The seat and the back are made of curved and upholstered plywood, which joins onto the chair's supporting structure, made of solid beech or oak. The materials are combined with technical precision to guarantee maximum stability. The expansive shapes, inspired by circles, lightly embrace the body, providing pleasant, firm and flexible support.

Crassevig is offering the Lene chair, which complements the armchair of the same name. Designed by This Weber, the chair is the result of an eloquent analysis of proportions and dimensions. The curved, rounded lines of the armchair are replicated, as are the unique joints on the solid wood back legs that support the back, offering creativity and technology in a single product. The Lene chair is available in natural ash, with upholstered seat and back, or in stained or lacquered wood.
